

Campaign Performance Summary — StreamCo Marketing Division

Prepared for: Senior Leadership Team

Report Period: July 2024 — March 2025

Overview:

This report summarizes marketing campaign performance across all channels for the past three quarters. Total marketing spend reached $12.4 million across 847 campaigns promoting our content library. Overall return on ad spend (ROAS) was 4.7x, exceeding our target of 4.0x.

Channel Performance Analysis:

Social Media campaigns delivered the highest ROAS at 6.2x, driven by viral moments from Stellar Run trailers on TikTok and Instagram Reels. Total social spend was $3.1 million generating $19.2 million in attributed revenue. Search Ads maintained consistent performance with 5.1x ROAS on $2.8 million spend. Email marketing proved most cost-efficient at 8.3x ROAS, though with limited scale at $1.2 million spend. Display advertising underperformed at 2.1x ROAS, and we recommend reducing display allocation by 25%. Influencer partnerships showed promising results at 4.8x ROAS for Sci-Fi titles specifically. TV advertising, while expensive at $2.4 million, drove significant brand awareness measured through search volume lifts of 340%.

CPM Trends:

Cost per thousand impressions (CPM) increased 12% year-over-year across digital channels. Social media CPM rose from $6.20 to $7.40, reflecting increased competition. Search CPM remained relatively stable at $3.80. Email CPM decreased slightly to $1.10 due to improved list hygiene and segmentation.

Best-Performing Creatives:

Short-form video content (15-30 seconds) outperformed static images by 3.2x in click-through rate. Behind-the-scenes content generated 45% higher engagement than traditional trailers. User-generated content campaigns achieved 2.8x higher conversion rates than branded content. Personalized recommendations in email campaigns improved click rates by 67%.

Title-Specific Campaign Results:

Stellar Run received the largest marketing investment at $2.1 million, generating an exceptional 7.1x ROAS. Dark Orbit campaigns focused on sci-fi enthusiast audiences achieved 5.8x ROAS. Comedy titles (Laughter Factory, Stand-Up Universe, Comedy Central) collectively received $1.8 million in marketing spend but delivered only 3.2x ROAS. Romance in Rain performed well with targeted campaigns on female-skewing platforms.

Recommendations:

Increase social media allocation by 20% for Q2 2025. Reduce display advertising budget and reallocate to influencer partnerships. Implement A/B testing framework for all email campaigns. Develop genre-specific creative strategies rather than one-size-fits-all approaches. Comedy marketing requires fundamental repositioning — current messaging does not resonate with target demographics.
